

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Apostle Paul prayed "I pray that . . . you may know . . . what are the riches of the glory of His inheritance in the saints" (Eph. 1:18). Paul's point is clear: redemption and its accompanying blessings are so profound that we must have supernatural help to understand them. That's why he prayed for our enlightenment (v. 18). Such understanding is crucial because how you perceive your spiritual resources dictates how you live your life. If, for example, you realize you have every resource for godly living (Eph. 1:3), you are less likely to succumb to temptation. Knowing God has given you His very best in Christ (Rom. 8:31) assures you that He won't withhold lesser things, so you'll not tend to worry about earthly needs. Understanding that you have already received "grace upon grace" (John 1:16), abundant life (John 10:10), and "everything pertaining to life and godliness" (2 Pet. 1:3) gives you confidence that God's future grace and resources will be more than sufficient. (2 Cor. 12:9) Those things (promises) should motivate us to praise our rich and glorious God for his rich and glorious inheritance. Thank God for the privilege of being his children.
