WELCOME

Preachers don't know everything. In fact, an important part of ministering to God's people is having the humility to take the time to search for the right answer instead of quickly and carelessly deploying the wrong one. But it's one thing to tell your congregation "I don't know." It's another entirely to stand before them and say "I can't know, and neither can you. But you should still listen to me." That's the hazardous message emanating from too many pulpits today—nobody knows what God's Word really means. If the clarity of Scripture is denied, the certainty of any biblical doctrine must also be rejected, since we can no longer be sure that the Bible actually means what it says. Once doctrinal certainty grounded in biblical authority is dismissed, personal convictions must also be discarded, since they no longer have any firm foundation. And if personal convictions disappear, spiritual community will also vanish, since true fellowship necessarily begins with shared values and convictions. A healthy church is one that is motivated by a common affection for God and His Word, and one that really knows what it is to love one another. That affection, both for God and for others, arises out of the confidence that the Bible is true, that it is absolute, and that it can be understood. The only way we can ever be certain about anything is to approach every biblical text with a careful, rational, discerning mind to hear and understand accurately what God is saying. Take that away and what basis is there for certainty about any truth? So what are we to do? Preach the Truth! Welcome to H.C.C.
